Responding to its inspirational setting, the superb and novel architectural solution highlights rugged sandstone walls, combined with modern interior finishes. Most striking is the lounge, with its redwood ceiling and two-story-high windows framing dramatic views.

The luxurious suites feature balconies with mountain views, fireplaces, and furnishings reflecting the western mood—king-size platform beds, woven cowhide chairs, and pine stump occasional tables. The suites feature a private dressing room and spacious bathroom with a deep soaking tub with its own panoramic mountain view. In addition to the 29 standard suites, accommodations include eight upgraded suites and three deluxe suites.

The mood of the 65-seat grill is set by a large wood-burning fireplace and cinnamon and fruitwood table tops. A spacious library with natural daylight adjoins the lounge with a selection of books on western and Native American culture and regional flora and fauna, plus CDs, videos, and games. An adjacent room with a wood-burning fireplace is available for meetings and special-occasion dining. The health spa features four treatment rooms, two exercise studios, steam rooms, and a space for individualized programs.

The Alpine resort area encompasses 2,500 acres (1,000 ha) of ski trails and snowboarding terrain. Extensive cross-country skiing begins a few minutes from the resort. Snowmobiling, dog-sledding, snowshoeing, sleigh-rides, horseback riding, mountain biking, fly fishing, river rafting, golf and tennis, as well as nature tours and scheduled ecotourist events are available year-round. The resort's ambiance is appropriately rooted in the Rocky Mountains of the American West and the cattle ranches nestled in the nearby valleys.

Sun Mountain Lodge, Winthrop, Washington

Like the ski industry itself, Sun Mountain Lodge reconstructed itself to meet significant changes in customer preferences. The resort's rugged timber log expression set the design character for the renovation of a nearby guestroom building. In the lodge, older public and service areas were updated and others, a library, meeting rooms, boardroom, restaurant, and retail shops were added, along with a new wing of 50 additional guestrooms.

Inspired by the magnificent mountain, lake, and river views as well as the culture of the Methow Valley artisans whose work graces the original and enhanced interior, the designers and craftspeople

The old lodge renovation and addition Sun Mountain Lodge, Winthrop, Washington. In expanding this rugged stone and timber lodge, the traditional style of the original design was preserved and enhanced by local artisans crafting decorative elements ranging from fireplace screens and carved mantels, to split-log table tops and inventive lighting fixtures.

The Alpine ski lodge The Ritz-Carlton Bachelor Gulch, Vail, Colorado. The design of this premier ski resort incorporates a full range and variety of recreational amenities as well as different types of residential units. The views of the hotel are enhanced by recessing the arrival court to conceal its standing vehicles. Large spectator terraces at the lobby level and guestroom balconies have wide views of the ski slopes.
